

2 ARMY PLANES CRASH IN LAST NIGHT'S STORM

Six Soldiers Killed in Separate Similar Accidents

Columbus, O., May 17 (AP)—Two army plane crashes less than 100 miles apart in hilly southern Ohio during last night's violent wind and rain storm killed six and perhaps seven men.

Four bodies, none identified immediately, were removed from the wreckage of a plane which struck a hillside eight miles north of Nelsonville and Sheriff Floyd Duffy said he understood a fifth man also was in the plane, reported to be from Texas.

Two air corps captains were killed as their ship plunged into the ground with great force 10 miles south of Wilmington—15 minutes after the Nelsonville crash.

Major J. W. Sessums, Wright field adjutant, identified the victims in the Wilmington crash as Capt. R. A. VoDeraw of Dayton and Capt. John C. Stanley. Both were stationed at Washington and were enroute to Dayton in an advanced training ship, he said.

Sergeant E. B. Webb of the state highway patrol said the plane's motor was buried deep in the earth and that it probably dove to the ground at high speed.

Witnesses said the plane which crashed near Nelsonville cut a 100-yard swath through trees and brush down a hillside and smashed up in a muddy road at the bottom. Residents of the nearby village of Carbon Hill said they heard it circling in an apparent search for a place to land for a half hour before the accident.

Army attaches at Patterson field, Dayton, said today five men in a twin-motored ship from Barksdale field, La., lost their lives as the plane smashed into a hillside near Nelsonville, O., 75 miles southwest of here. The other plane plunged into the ground 100 miles west of Nelsonville near Wilmington.

The five killed were: (First names and addresses unavailable)
Captain Sonfield,
2nd Lt. Wiant,
2nd Lt. Griswell,
2nd Lt. Brown,
Sgt. Davis.

Davis' body was not immediately located in the wreckage of a basic combat navigation training plane (Beechcraft) which was scattered over a wide area.

When the mishap occurred the plane was enroute from Louisville, Ky., to Pittsburgh.

The World Today

[By the Associated Press]

The seesaw struggle for control of Salum, heat-ridden advance point of the Axis drive into Egypt, has swayed again to the Axis advantage. German and Italian forces were reported to have recaptured the town Friday after the British had taken it only the day before.

In their counter-attack the Axis forces were said also to have retaken Fort Capuzzo, a Libyan frontier stronghold near Salum, and Sidi Azels, as well as 100 prisoners.

However, a besieged British garrison still held out in Tobruk where motorized units were reportedly fighting back at German and Italian forces which have been hammering the town's defenses for a month.

In the western air war, the Luftwaffe intensified its attacks on Britain last night by sending at least 100 planes over industrial Birmingham in a three-hour assault—the heaviest raid of the week. Two German bombers were reported shot down over England in the night.

The Royal Air Force centered raids on Cologne, railway and factory city in the Rhine valley, and over Boulogne, on the Channel Coast. Watchers in England said the sky was lit by bomb flashes over the French port.

Syrian airdromes which Germany might use as jumping-off places for a drive on the Suez Canal soon will be targets for all-out attacks by the Royal Air Force, informed Britons asserted today, as the question of French-German collaboration loomed even larger on the world horizon.

German planes on air fields at Damascus, Rayak and Palmyra already have been attacked, but well-posted sources in London predicted Royal Air Force bombers would turn familiar Nazi blitzkrieg tactics to their own ends and endeavor to wreck landing fields in French-mandated Syria beyond use.

French sources in Vichy acknowledged that British planes had bombed Syrian Airdromes yesterday but a statement said these attacks were not considered aggression.

Quarters close to the French government in Vichy expressed astonishment at what they described as "semi-official declarations" in the United States indicating that occupation of French Guinea and Martinique was under consideration.

They said the United States must have misinterpreted projected French collaboration with Germany and expressed the greatest surprise that President Roosevelt apparently took chief of state Marshal Philippe Petain's talk of collaboration "as putting French colonies at the disposal of Germany."

Authoritative sources in Washington, meanwhile, said the 21 American republics were ready to establish "provisional administration" over French colonies in the new world if French-German collaboration should be projected into the Western Hemisphere.

The London Press was bitterly critical of France. The Times lashed at what it called "Vichy's act of betrayal," and authoritative sources pointed out that German penetration of Syria would put Nazi forces within 250 miles of the Suez Canal—ultimate issue in the conflict in the middle east.

West of Suez, British forces were said to be hammering at axis forces in Fort Capuzzo, just across the Libyan border from Salum, Egypt, which the British reported taking yesterday. London sources, however, did not regard the action there as resumption of a general British offensive nor as an indication that the danger of an Axis drive into Egypt was past.

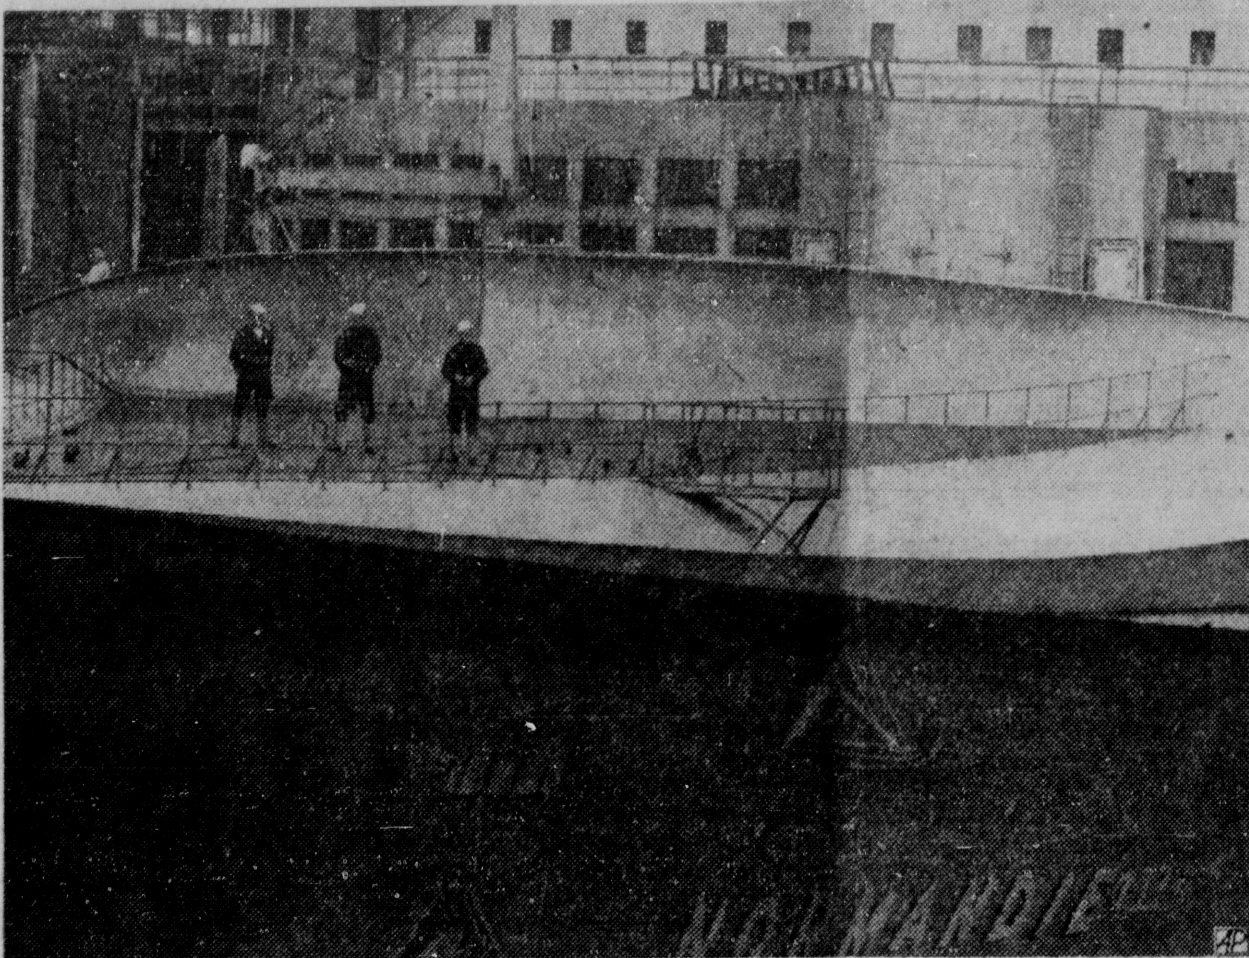

In the western air war, German bombers gave England—especially the Midlands—her heaviest attack in a week, while the RAF struck back with blows at the Nazi-occupied channel ports and at targets in western Germany.

Turkey appeared determined to maintain a purely defensive attitude toward developments in the middle east, but Soviet Russia loomed as an uncertain factor. The mystery of Moscow's real intentions was not clarified to any extent by a delayed dispatch from that capital revealing that Joseph Stalin was transferring some of his most expert generals from the far east to western commands.

Berlin commentators showed increasing annoyance over President Roosevelt's condemnation of Franco-German collaboration and his defiance of the Nazi Red Sea blockade. Said a Nazi spokesman: "Let President Roosevelt continue meddling in European affairs and we will succeed in uniting all Europe against him."

U. S. Coast Guardsmen Board French Ships

While movement of German forces across French-mandated Syria toward Iraq indicated closer collaboration between France and Germany, and threatened a break in U.S.-French relations, coast guardsmen took under control a dozen or more French-flag vessels in American ports. Among these was the luxury liner, Normandie, (above) in port at New York city.

Volunteers Are Needed to Prepare More Garments

More than 2,500 pieces of clothing for civilian war refugees in England and parts of the continent were shipped to Jersey City today by the Adams county Red Cross after being completed by volunteer workers.

Miss Margaret McMillan, executive Red Cross secretary, said that volunteer women have spent more than 30,000 working hours in the production of war relief clothing in Adams county. If they had been paid at the rate of 30 cents an hour, the labor bill would have been more than $9,000. One woman working alone would have required about 13 years of constant work at eight hours a day, 300 days a year, she pointed out.

Approximately 30 pieces are included in each of the 90 layettes shipped this morning and records show that each layette requires about 30 hours of work for completion. Several knitted afghans, requiring 80 hours each, have been shipped by the county chapter.

The list of goods shipped today after being packed without charge by M. B. Frazee at the G. C. Murphy company store, included the following: 90 layettes, 80 women's and girls' skirts, 39 women's and girls' dresses; 12 boys' shirts, eight pairs of overalls, 10 pairs of hospital pajamas, and six convalescent robes.

Dozens of other garments are cut out and waiting for hands to sew them into garments for later shipment, Miss McMillan said. Volunteers may take the materials to their homes or sew at the East High street work room on Tuesday and Friday afternoons.

12 OUT OF 14 MEN ARE ACCEPTED FOR U.S. SERVICE

One From Each Draft Board Is Rejected

Twelve of the 14 Adams county men sent to Harrisburg for induction Friday were accepted, the two draft boards here were advised this morning by mail. One man from each district was rejected.

Those who were approved on final examination and accepted were: District No. 1—John M. Spangler, Percell D. Ecker and Claude H. Miller, Littlestown; Archie M. Guise, Gardners R. 2; Faber G. Lingg, Hanover R. 3, and Harold C. Miller and Herbert E. Griest, both of Gardners R. 1.

District No. 2—Stanley C. Settle, Biglerville R. 2; Wilford H. Spangler, Aspers R. 1; Roy T. Bream, Gettysburg R. 2; Evers P. Rinehart, Gettysburg R. 3, and John G. Brehm, Gettysburg.

Physicians Needed

Harrisburg, May 17 (AP)—Pennsylvania's selective service director cautioned the Commonwealth's 422 local draft boards today to maintain "a clear appreciation of the overall national shortage" in considering physicians for induction.

"The local board has the problem of deciding whether or not an individual doctor is so necessary to a community that he should be deferred from training and service," Dr. William Mather Lewis said, adding:

"This problem should be approached with a clear appreciation of the overall national shortage."

"If the local board determines that he should not be deferred, it should * * * encourage him to apply to the corps area commander for commission in the medical corps reserve. If he has been finally classified in 1-A and does not take advantage of this opportunity for commission he will be inducted when his order number is reached."

The total of 9,000 medical doctors required by the armed and related forces, Dr. Lewis said, represents a reduction of at least five per cent in the number of physicians available for service in civilian life. He added that increased industrial hazards will increase the demand for civilians.

"A report from the office of production management to the deputy director of public service," the director said, "conclusively demonstrates that the medical profession constitutes an activity essential to the national health, safety and interest, and that a serious interruption or delay therein is likely to impede the national defense program."

COMPANY E IS ORDERED INTO NIGHT CONVOY

Gettysburg Soldiers Get Another Taste of Warfare

Indiantown Gap, May 17, 1941.

(Letter to the Gettysburg Times)

Company E last Wednesday night underwent for the first time the taste of night convoy. A sudden order that came from Captain Keckler to Top Sergeant Scott stated that every man in the company be prepared to leave at 8:30. These were the only instructions that were given to the soldiers, other than the sergeants in charge. They themselves knew nothing more than to report to the captain's office to receive their sealed instructions 10 minutes before the time for departure.

Sergeants Scott and Mickley were each placed in charge of a platoon and immediately after they received their instructions the entire company loaded on 5 ten-wheel trucks and 2 "pick-ups."

Value of Map Reading

The study of map reading proved its value here because the entire route was mapped out according to the conventional signs taught to soldiers in army map reading. The route included many country dirt roads, mountain passways, main highways and streams.

During the fifty mile drive, one of the inconveniences that presented itself before the convoy was a supposedly bombed bridge. The task of rebuilding the bridge temporarily was the objective of the men. In exactly 11 minutes the trucks were again rolling along on their way with the bridge rebuilt, then torn down again as it had been before the arrival of the convoy.

After 15 miles of driving through mountain passways and country dirt roads the instructions stated that the two sergeants in charge take their respective platoons in opposite directions and to meet at a designated spot "somewhere in the mountains."

Sealed Instructions

Each sergeant opened his sealed instructions and set out for his objective designation. The strange roads that the company used seemed endless and many times through the drive the soldiers felt that they were really lost only to come upon some sign that led them to a corresponding sign on the maps.

Three Hours of Driving

After the intensive drive, the split convoy met at the destination after three hours of continuous driving. Sergeant Mickley's platoon arrived 20 minutes ahead of schedule while Sergeant Scott's arrived 5 minutes later than schedule. The several hazards of the latter was the cause for the delay. It was an excellent experience and greatly acquainted the men with regular warfare conditions.

After the soldiers returned to the (Continued on Page Seven)

SOUTHERN MAMMIES

CASH IN ON THEIR REJUVENATED FAME New Orleans, (AP)—Nobody's heard lately from Old Black Joe but if the mammy singers are worried about the supply of southern mammites running out, they can forget about it. The streets of New Orleans are positively cluttered with them—in bright bandanas and gingham, with neat white aprons.

For years no southern novel, play or movie has been complete without the heroine's "mammy," preferably stout and fussy, with a heart of gold beneath an ebony skin. Show owners in New Orleans' old French Quarter, capitalizing more and more on shoals of tourists, now are making Negro mammites part of their business.

A shop selling pralines, the delicious confection of brown sugar and pecans, began it. Mammites in checked gingham, wearing the traditional bandana headband, made the pralines while visitors watched. A dummy mammy of cotton was placed outside the door.

Then a praline shop across St. Peter Street went its rival one better. It installed a real, live mammy, smoking a cornocob pipe. The idea caught on, and now there are mammites, or stuffed cotton imitations, all up and down the Quarter.

Springtime in Pennsylvania

Philadelphia, May 17 (AP)—Getting married is a serious business, but spring in Pennsylvania produced many surprises.

For instance: A 60-year-old man and a 32-year-old woman appeared in Lancaster and obtained a license to wed, a license to fish, and a dog license.

A Philadelphia judge ruled that engagement and wedding rings are given "for keeps" and a husband has no right to ask their return. A marriage license was stolen from a Steelton home.

A Philadelphia girl complained that every time her wedding bells were supposed to ring, locomotive bells rang instead—carrying her fiancé "out of town for the F.B.I." The fiancé was sentenced for impersonating an officer.

But that's only the beginning of the 1941 springtime laughter and sorrow.

Fire department: Each morning the assistant fire chief in Reading telephones the department to ask if there have been any fires during the night. On one recent occasion there had been—in the apartment below him. A fire in an Easton home was attributed to hot bricks placed between the sheets to warm a bed. Returning from a prolonged fire in which 100 had been variously injured, a Lancaster fireman fell down an open chute and suffered two broken ribs.

FOR A DOG

Lancaster, Pa., May 17 (AP)—Paul C. Oliver, 20, of Lampeter started out for a veterinarian with his ailing dog, but before getting there, he, too, had need of medical attention. His car glanced into another auto and Oliver ended up in Lancaster General hospital.

for the third time in 10 months, he asked: "Why do they always pick on me?" A 60-year-old "student" in Philadelphia WPA welding classes said he tried to take his own life "because I wasn't getting along in school." The Reading health officer complained it was impossible to tack quarantine notices to the metal doors at a housing project there.

Utter confusion: Pickets at a Philadelphia plant paraded back and forth wearing raincoats supplied by the company. A truant officer found an errand pupil had joined the army at Indian town Gap. Accused of being drunk, a Philadelphia man asserted he just smelled like it—that his clothing was drenched with fusel oil, an alcohol by-product.

Police department: The Olyphant police captain resigned, but returned to duty later, explaining "I couldn't get rid of the uniform so I thought I'd better wear it out." In place of a turkey placed on a windowsill to cool, an Elkins Park restaurant owner found only a rosebud.

Surprise

A turkey-like bird that the Philadelphia zoo has pointed out for years as a fine example of a male cassowary has—laid an egg.

And up in Reading, a man sticks his head inside a restaurant each morning and yells:

"G-man!"

He's the garbage collector.

College News

Friday night and this evening, nine of the Greek letter fraternities on the college campus are holding their spring house parties as the concluding dance activity of the year. The dances Friday night lasted from 9 o'clock until 1 o'clock while the dances tonight will continue from 8 o'clock until 12 o'clock.

Two of the fraternities on the campus are planning to hold their spring parties on May 29 and 30, while eight of the nationals and the one local are having affairs this week-end. Phi Kappa Psi, Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Chi, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Kappa Delta Rho, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Phi Kappa Rho entertained Friday night and tonight while Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Alpha Tau Omega are holding their dances after the college examination period.

Recently four co-eds of the college were pledged by the two national women's fraternities on the campus. Those who were pledged by Delta Gamma are Virginia Nagele, Helen K. Gams and Phyllis Wickey, while Elizabeth Anne Sheffer was pledged by Chi Omega.

On Thursday afternoon Alpha Tau Omega fraternity won the intramural interfraternity softball league after winning a victory from Phi Delta Theta fraternity by a score of 4-2. Both of the teams had lost one game during the current season and so were tied for first place in the league.

Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, however, walked away with the all-sports cup having amassed a total of 45 points out of a possible 50, according to latest reports. Phi Delta Theta holds a close second for the all-sports cup with 41.5 points.

Bob Parks pitched the game for ATO on Thursday afternoon, while Bucky Walters led the winners with two hits at three times at bat. ATO had five hits during the game as compared to three for the Phi Delt.

Bob Shaw was on the mound for the Delt's walking five men; while the ATO hurler walked eight of the Phi Delt ball players. With the score tied, two to two at the last half of the sixth inning, ATO organized a batting attack which tallied two runs for their team. Walters started the barrage with a double which brought Diel home for the third run. Diel had walked. A bad throw to second brought Walters home after Addison had driven a grounder into short stop. Lou Hayes was head umpire while Ed MacBean served as base umpire for the game.

William H. Ridinger, Gettysburg, was elected president of Kappa Phi Kappa, men's educational fraternity, at a meeting held recently in Glatfelter hall. At the same meeting George F. Martin was elected vice-president. Other officers of the organization are William A. Ewan, secretary, and Gordon A. Mickle, treasurer. Prof. Lester O. Johnson is faculty adviser of the group.

Fairfield Wins County Scholastic Baseball Title; Bullets Also Champions

FAIRFIELD WINS ADAMS COUNTY BASEBALL TITLE

Two Runs in Sixth Upsets Arendtsville in Close Game 7-6

Fairfield supplanted Arendtsville as champions of the Adams County Scholastic Baseball league Friday afternoon by defeating the apple-pickers at Arendtsville for the second straight time in a three-game series for the title, 7-6.

Arendtsville won the league titles in 1939 and 1940 by nosing out Fairfield but on Friday the tables were reversed.

The new champions scored their winning run in the sixth inning when two runs were tabbed. W. McGaughlin opened with a single. Sease fanned and Deardoff was thrown out by Mack Raffensperger. Arendtsville hurler, I. McGaughlin singled and W. McGaughlin scored when Singley played the ball poorly. I. McGaughlin going to second. B. Musselman hit then scored. I. McGaughlin with what proved to be the winning run.

Arendtsville got off to a good start by pushing over two runs in the second. However, Raffensperger developed a wild streak in the third which enabled Fairfield to score four times. The Arendtsville hurler walked four men in that frame, forcing home one run, another scoring on a passed ball while Byer's hit pushed over two more.

After Fairfield had built up a 5-2 lead at the middle of the fourth frame, Arendtsville spurred to tie the count with three runs in its half of the fourth and went ahead in the fifth with another tally.

Each team collected 13 hits, Keller and Byers leading their respective teams with three hits apiece.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, May 17.—Anton Christoforidis vs Gus Lesnevich for the NBA light-heavy title Thursday night is the next stop on Mike Jacobs' hit parade. . . . Fancy an NBA championship bout in General Phelan's territory. . . . Some of the best informed minds around town think the Yanks have a deal of some sort cooking. . . . So the pulp can't take criticism, Hugh? Well, the Rev. A. J. Quinn, of Carroll, Iowa, has been issued a membership in the National Association of Semi-Pro Umpires. . . . Lew Jenkins has bought a new $800 motorcycle and swears he'll personally ride it this summer in the championship races.

Today's guest star—Gerry Hern, Boston Post. "The growing disrespect that rival baseball players are showing for the New York Yankees seems like treachery. . . . No one is afraid of them. . . . None of the teams tremble when they discover the Yanks are on their way to town. . . . The players do not doff their hats respectfully as the Yankees trot past and other American leaguers do not make any attempt to apologize for a stray double or triple."

Today's sports quiz—How can Bob Diefenthaler, big ten high jump champ from Illinois in 1939, be a private in the army and an officer in the navy at the same time? Answer a hundred words or so down. . . . Disappointed at not getting a June bout with Louis, Lou Nova is taking to the road and is open to offers. . . . Babe Herman, the old dodger immortal, was burned up when a coast paper ran a yarn about Billy Herman under the headline, "Herman traded to end clique," and illustrated it with Babe's picture. . . . Patriotism knows no boundaries. . . . When they played the National Anthem at the stadium the other day, the customers on roof tops and on the subway platform outside the park, whipped their hats off and stood at attention right along with the guys inside.

Must be in the blood—Canada Lee made $90,000 in the ring and wound up with four hits. . . . Now, in the leading role in "Native Son," a Broadway hit, he just about has established himself as the top negro actor of the time. . . . But Canada Lee says if he had to do it all over again, he would be a fighter.

Love feast—Speaking of peace, how about the northern Minnesota fishing trip such big ten war lords as Fritz Crisler, Bernie Bierman, Eddie Anderson, Lyn Waldorf and Paul Brown are throwing after the conference track meet today at Minneapolis?

Paging Sherlock Guck—Although the White Sox are last in every department of American league play except pitching, they are roosting comfortably in second place. . . . What do you make of that, Watson.

Baseball Fans Honor Connie Mack Today

Philadelphia, May 17 (AP).—This is Connie Mack Day in Pennsylvania, officially dedicated to the man recognized as baseball's grandest character.

Celebrities of the game from Judge Kensaw Mountain Landis down came here to join in paying homage to the 79-year-old idol of millions of youngsters and grownup fans.

A bit flustered by all the praise, Connie declares:

"I hardly know what to say. It's more of a tribute to baseball. I hope to prove worthy of it all."

Just to give the celebration a lasting effect, they're changing the name of Shibe park to Connie Mack stadium. Mack opposed the change for two years but citizens think the home of the Athletics should bear the name of the grand old gentleman who brought Philadelphia nine American league pennants and three world championships.

A citizens committee collected many gifts for presentation to Connie before he sends his A's against the Detroit Tigers in a feature of the celebration.

George M. Cohan, famous in the world of the theatre, put to original music for the occasion his praises of the Quaker City manager. It is entitled "Connie Mack Is the Grand Old Name."

Montgomery Takes 7 of 10 Rounds From Jenkins

New York, May 17 (AP).—Another shot at Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins—This time with the title on the line—then a quick foray into the welterweight division where Fritz Zivic is head man—that is the program of Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia buzz-saw and the Keystone state's newest candidate for nationalistic recognition.

In Madison Square Garden Friday night Montgomery took up where he left off against Jenkins some weeks back by handing the New York and California 135-pound king one of the worst lickings of his meteoric career. Jenkins' title was not at stake.

Tuesday the negro's handlers will go before the New York State Athletic commission and formally challenge for the title. If agreeable Promoter Mike Jacobs will stage the encore during July or August, either in the Polo grounds or Yankee stadium.

If he can repeat last night's triumph, Montgomery then will go after Zivic, who now is busy with plans for defending his title against Al (Bummy) Davis, earlier in the summer.

Jenkins came out of last night's melee with a bad cut on the nose, another on the right eye and a gash on the left ear. He lost seven of the 10 rounds.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

INVESTMENT NUMBER ONE
INVESTMENT knowledge is rather at a premium these days—if indeed any reliable quantity of it remains at all! But in a world of spiritual wealth and free, God-created beauty, we should be able to weather all storms and concentrate upon the one greatest investment in life—that which we have in ourselves!

You are your greatest investment. The more you store in that mind of yours, the more you enrich your experience, the more people you meet, the more books you read, and the more places you visit, the greater is that investment in all that you are.

Your material luxuries and pleasures may be all "taxed away," and you may even have all your material possessions wiped out—as so many have in foreign lands today—yet nothing can harm, take away, or deprive you of the mental and spiritual investments that you make in yourself.

You are your greatest capital. The more you add to this capital the greater you are as a human being, and a friend, as well as being a useful member of society. There is no limit, either, to the capacity for wealth that you make in yourself. You can make it an endless enrichment.

It is unintelligent to allow any material possession to so enslave one as to numb the finer and eternal qualities of mind and heart that clothe the soul. The genuinely efficient are those who do not fail to develop and continually add to their structure of character.

Your investment Number One is yourself—and always will be. You cannot put too much into this investment. You cannot fortify yourself too much against the many onslaughts in life. You cannot be too strong—in mind, heart, body, or character. It is your greatest hope for happiness, as well as for your health and material success.

Everything that you add to your peace of mind, and to your outlook upon life, is added capital that no one but yourself can dissipate.

MEASURING THE YEARS

The youngest waiting Christmas thinks the year an endless thing.

But the oldest crowding seventy knows that time is swift of wing.

The youngest looks at forty as if two-score years are long,
But the oldest smiles to hear him,
For he knows the lad is wrong.

Then what is age, you question, if it isn't told by years,
And how are we to know it when the end of youth appears?

Well, Time is swift of feather, but the heart of man is stout,
And years alone won't age him till his strength has given out.

And whether man be twenty or eighty to the year,
The heart alone can tell him when old age has caught him here.

The Words They Used

Connie Mack (disclosing a move for more night games to meet the demands of fans)—"The fans want night games * * * during the last month I guess I have had at least a hundred letters asking me to do what I could * * * if we don't satisfy them we'll be left holding the bag."

Frank E. Gannett (nationally known newspaper publisher and last summer a candidate for the republican nomination for President; speaking before the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters)—"More important to us than saving the British Empire, which we all want to see saved of course, is seeing to it that we save America from one-man rule."

Frank Kent (columnist of the Baltimore Sun, speaking to the same group of women)—"America's own defense program is making the minimum progress at the maximum cost and the whole situation is deeply discouraging to those who know the facts."

Dr. William Mather Lewis (State selective service director to University of Pennsylvania students)—"Adolf Hitler counts on the emotional instability of his enemies as well as upon tanks and planes to bring him victory * * * It is well for us to realize that when we yield to the jitters or to defeatism we score one for Adolf."

Judge E. E. Creps (sentencing a bond clerk in the district attorney's office, to three years in the workhouse, for accepting fake bail bonds for the release of prisoners)—"Those in public office must be as exemplary as they can be and function in an honest way. They must be condemned for any conscious wrongdoing."

Van A. Bitner (director of the union drive to organize Bethlehem plants)—"The SWOC is now prepared to move forward to victory in other plants of Bethlehem Steel and in the plants of other companies."

JAMES MAY SEND SHARP MESSAGE TO LEGISLATURE

Failure to Pass Half-Billion Budget Is Feared

[By the Associated Press]

Harrisburg, May 17—Administration sources disclosed today Governor James has been contemplating a special message to the Pennsylvania legislature warning that failure to appropriate money for relief before May 31 may cut off grants to the needy.

The decision to deliver such a message to a joint session of the house and senate will be determined by the action of the house next week.

"If the house fails to pass the relief appropriation bill next week, it will be touch-and-go on the question of relief grants and the Governor may step in," this source said.

The democratic majority in the house has announced it would report the remainder of the tax program from committee when it returns Monday night. There has been no assurance that the general appropriation bill will pass the house and go to the senate in the same week, however.

What Failure to Pass Would Mean
Administration leaders pointed out that failure to adopt the general appropriation bill by the end of the biennium, which coincides with the end of this month, would:

1) Prevent allocation of funds to the unemployed.

2) Halt the activities of the state defense council and the home guard which are to be financed from the appropriation for the department of military affairs.

3) In some measure, affect the daily activities of most Capitol departments with the threat of a "payless payday" for state employees.

Half a Billion Budget Stalled
The Governor's $542,000,000 budget has been stalled in the house since Feb. 3 while the democrats investigated the tax yield estimates which they now say are too low. Chairman Leo A. Acherman of the house appropriations committee said he would accompany the release of the tax bills with a statement of his revenue estimates which "disagree with the Governor's on almost every item."

Dr. Francis B. Haas announced the Department of Public Instruction listed 18,915 students in refresher and supplementary training courses of vocational education with 5,855 enrolled in the important machine tool operation branch.

Since July, the program drew 53,530 men into vocational training schools.

Dr. Haas also disclosed creation of a marine school in Philadelphia to train men for shipbuilding jobs. It will cost $150,000 to train 250 men in three shifts a day, giving instructions to 750 workers every 24 hours.

Army Takes Too Many Doctors
At the same time, selective service headquarters advised local draft boards, when dealing with physicians registered for service, to bear in mind the Army and Navy has cut into the profession to the extent of five per cent "and the problem should be approached with a clear appreciation of the national shortage."

Lewis G. Hines, secretary of Labor and Industry, reported the state employment service had found jobs for 5,100 persons in the first week of May, an increase of four per cent over the average week in April.

Turnpike Tolls May Be Cut
Announcement was made by Chairman Walter A. Jones of the Pennsylvania turnpike commission that the 160-mile toll highway from Carlisle to Irwin would earn $3,000,000 in the first year of operation. The commission had estimated $2,670,000 as necessary for all expenses, including amortization of the bonds.

Jones held out the possibility of a reduction in tolls, especially applied to trucks.

Governor contemplates special message to assembly, warning relief shutdown possible if house fails to act quickly on general appropriation bill.

Turnpike to earn $3,000,000 in first year of operation, a profit of $330,000, Commission Chairman Walter A. Jones reports.

Shortage of physicians for civil practice brought about by Army and Navy inductions, draft boards advised.

By B. F. MacPherson

No. 191--Private Joseph Stealy (1760-1823)

Private Joseph Stealy (1760-1823)
THIS will be one of our last columns on Christ Reformed Cemetery, unless some additional information is forthcoming. We have exhausted all available "leads" and our last authentic record pertained to Joseph Stealy, and according to data in the State Archives Division this man received "depreciation pay" for service in the Revolution. As you may recall Joseph Stealy was the soldier of the Revolution whose name was given last week. His wife's name was Elizabeth Stealy, and the date of their marriage and her maiden name is unknown. In addition to this we know nothing pertaining to this soldier's family. We do believe, however, that "Stealy" was the early version of "Stahle," but we have no proof.

Buried in the Joseph Stealy plot in Christ Church Cemetery we find the following members of the family:

1. "Loyesa Stealy/died February 18, 1839/Born August 26, 1753."

Note: This was quite possible a sister-in-law of the Joseph Stealy, soldier of the Revolution. The dates of birth and death would suggest this relationship.

2. "John Stealy/died March 19, 1811/Aged 60 years."

Note: This man we believe to have been a brother of the Joseph Stealy, soldier of the Revolution. We also believe that the Loyesa Stealy mentioned above was the wife of this man. You will also notice that John Stealy was eligible for service in the Revolution, and probably saw such service, although we have been unable to find a service record for him.

Also buried in this cemetery are the following members of the family, but these branches spelled their name "Staley," "Stahley" and "Staly." The inscriptions follow:

1. "Solmn Stahley/died April 1, 1860/Aged about 55 years."

Note: We know nothing pertaining to this man.

2. "Jullann/daughter of Solmn and J. Stahley/died July 19, 1869/Aged 20 years."

Note: The daughter of the Solmn Stahley mentioned above. If the wife and mother is buried in this plot her grave is unmarked.

3. "Mary Ann/wife of James Staley/died July 14, 1874/Aged 49 years."

Note: We have been unable to place this woman on the "family tree."

4. "Joseph Staley/born September 18, 1795/Died January 5, 1875/Aged 79 years."

Note: We believe that this man

Catastrophe

If Petain Really Is Succumbing to Hitler

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

This is a thing which Britain has feared all along. Should Marshal Petain throw his colonies open to Hitler, it would provide the Germans with eagerly sought bases for operations which would threaten the British control of the entire Mediterranean. That would be an allied catastrophe.

And if the Nazis were able to secure the naval base of Dakar on the west coast of Africa, they could strike heavily from there against the trans-Atlantic shipping routes. That would give Hitler another powerful link for the counter-blocade with which he is trying to strangle Britain.

If Petain really is succumbing to Hitler's onslaught, then allied hope must turn in the direction of General Weygand, commander of the French colonial possessions. Weygand is Petain's man, and has supported the chief of state through thick and thin. However, he has always stood for the welfare of his country and there must be some question whether he would surrender colonial privileges to the Germans under any circumstances.

Should it appear that the nazis are to be allowed to use the colonies as bases, then it is difficult to see how Britain can refrain from strong measures to protect herself. Already she has signified that she will carry the war to the Germans in Syria, and one would expect her also to act to prevent nazis occupation of France's other colonies, and in particular against German seizure of Dakar.

It wouldn't be strange to see another allied naval expedition against Dakar—this time in sufficient force to carry out occupation.

Meanwhile the battle of the eastern Mediterranean is boiling up, with the Germans occupying Syria and using its airdromes as staging posts for the movement of troops by air to the aid of Iraq in its revolt against Britain. Freedom in Syria has given Hitler exactly what he needed to get ahead with his business in the near east without challenging a Turkey which he doesn't want to fight.

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDEMER

Chapter 29
 "WHAT are you asking me to get done?" Martin asked. It was a voice she hadn't heard, detached and businesslike.

"If you'd talk to her, or if that's too much bother, get your lawyer to. Or perhaps your mother would."

"Idea. Mother never objects to things because they're too much bother, like me. Rather likes to see flying fur. Is your ultimate intention to get Violetta replaced in her job, Eileen?"

"I suppose that would be impossible, with Lewis at the head of things."

"Well, boards expect a man to handle things when they give him control, you know."

"I know," she said meekly. "I only thought perhaps you could get them to let her have the pension she'd have got to in a few years now. And, maybe, if it isn't too much trouble."

"Skip it. Go on the principle that for once I'm willing to take trouble. To the extent, say, of five minutes with a telephone, or a checkbook."

The car jumped ahead. She looked at the profile beside her. Lips set tight, head reared angrily, color run up under the tan. She had not known that Martin could ever care about anything enough to lose his temper. Her snapped up to meet it.

"All right, I will. She's going out with a black eye. Have Lewis give her testimonials or whatever people in the position get."

"She'll get those—theoretically. All sorts of gilt-edged stuff. What will have to be fixed is the real underground story that filters out through the board's feelings about her."

"I didn't know. I suppose that's harder."

"No. Personal interviews with key members. What used to be called 'quarreling like man and wife,' I guess."

"For heaven's sake, Martin, what ails you?"

He said, suddenly relaxed and grinning, "What used to be called 'quarreling like man and wife,' I guess."

She said hotly, "That's a brutal reminder, under the circumstances!"

He laughed hysterically, herself that was always loosed around Martin's kind. He ordered, as usual, perfectly. They made conversation across the little table. Quite pleasant conversation, Martin only had one cocktail. He never had taken much, she remembered. Probably because of his sporting record. Unlike the rest of him.

"You're silent as the grave," he said, "and we're through. Come along, the fatal moment's arrived."

He had taken a room upstairs, as there was no pay box. He dropped into the armchair beside the bed-telephone stand to talk at his leisure. Eileen, at his gesture, perched on the bed beside him.

He looked so boyish, such a nice kid, there with the receiver against his pullover, his long legs sprawled out easily and his tousled fair head bent to the mouthpiece, that Eileen felt an irrational pang of pity. Irrational, for certainly pitying Martin Dane was pretty crazy!

But if only his dominant father and grandfather, his cause-hunting mother, had left him any job to do, he might be more of a match now for hard, brilliant Lewis Delevan.

Lewis had had the luck of having to fight for his own hand in a world where, right or wrong, you have to fight. Martin hadn't.

And so he would probably be a pushover for the first few convincing sentences Lewis would offer.

He had Lewis immediately, by a number she had never heard.

"Hello, Lewis. Feeling fine. Oh yes, we've been back a couple of weeks now."

What's all this about Violetta? Ah, my little secret. On information received. Reconsider it, will you, Lewis?

Nonsense. If we can keep a man like Goldstone, who's as red as a rose, we can stand Violetta Lee.

Rats, I'll take the risk of wrecking the foundation. I'll go to the mat with the board, personally, if you like.

No. Her usefulness is not lost. Oh, you can sell them anything. You were mistaken—rash act, justice must be maintained. I'll trust your dramatic golden tongue.

Definitely. Right over your head like a trained leopard. His voice, which had been easy and flippant, hardened. "No, I am not giving you any more reasons. Just a playboy's whim—backed by control of the sinews of war, old friend."

Do? Thanks, Grandfather wasn't a bad old wolf, at least he always meant what he said. I'm just like him there. Put it through his forty-eight hours, Delevan. Can an emergency board meeting, then, Good-bye.

He clicked back the receiver and stood up. His face and whole bearing had that look of brilliant waking to enjoyment and excitement she remembered seeing twice before. When she had risked her life to save Robin. And when he had, for amusement, risked his, in that terrible Hawaiian surf.

For the moment he was the Martin Dane she had thought him when she first saw him.

She said, "Oh Martin, I can't tell you how grateful—"

"It's the other way about. I told you I'd know Violetta since I was a kid. Come along."

She followed him downstairs. He got her coat from the cloakroom and held it for her, and dropped her handbag into a deep pocket of his own.

He started the car again, in the same direction.

"Have we time to go farther?" she asked.

"Lots. You've nothing to do with the afternoon, have you? Let's make a day of it. I'll buy you a ticket down from anywhere you like."

Dream Drive

There was no good reason against it. It was colder this far upstate, but spring was in the bright sharp air. She'd never get a chance to do this any more. She dove on with him in a dream. They talked a little or were silent, about anything or nothing. They had always been easy with each other. It had not changed.

"I've made good time," Martin said, and turned the car into a drive between high rough-barked gateposts. Up between green lawns, where snow patches still lingered, it was dark, but she could see a stretch of living-room windows.

"Don't you know the lodge? Of course, though, it looks different. All snowed in when we left it." He bent and turned his latekey, and drew her into the long, fire-lit, paneled room she remembered. She heard Ike's voice, talking to Mary in the kitchen. She stopped, her eyes on the big clock over the fireplace. Seven twenty.

"I telephoned Mary to have some stuff cooked," he said. "Come over to the fire, Eileen."

"Why, this isn't an inn—"

"Don't be foolish. Here's the timetable if you won't take my word for it. Two sleeper-expresses, a nine twenty and eleven something."

Plenty of time to settle down and rest, and have something to eat. You remember it only takes like an hour in the station wagon, wild as we seem. Grandfather used to own a railway, so he just stuck in a curve and a station."

Again, why not?

She went, when she had warmed herself, up to the room she had occupied before. It had a fire, there were fresh towels and a freshly set-out dressing table, as always, she supposed. She came down, to find Martin, neatly brushed and rather quiet, waiting for her by a little table drawn near the hearth.

Ike's Mary, upright and pleasant and wry, came in and greeted them as she set dishes on the table. Ike's Mary by this time would be past being surprised at anything Martin might do, of course.

Martin, across from her, did not seem very hungry. He was talking more steadily than usual. If it had not been Martin, she would have said he was nervous. The odd aliveness had not left him. Finally he called Mary impatiently to clear and push back the table. He put Eileen on a cushioned couch alongside the fire and stood by her and said, "And now."

The end of his sentence was drowned by a thundering knock on the outside door. Before Mary could come back from the kitchen to open it, it was flung open. Lewis Delevan, flushed and nearly hysterical with anger, burst in on them.

By John Selby

"MANHOLD," by Phyllis Bentley; Macmillan; $2.50.

PHYLLIS BENTLEY says that with her latest novel, "Manhold," she has finished "at least for the present" her series of Yorkshire historical novels. It is just as well, for she has worn her material thin.

Manhold is much the same story she has been telling through five novels preceding—the story of Yorkshire and cloth. Most of the time there has been a strong Yorkshireman, usually a little vulgar. This time he is Mr. Samuel Horsfall, creator of Manhold, which is a minor industrial principality in the manner of the 18th century. Usually there is a weaker man who gets himself kicked about, and this time there are two—ones Horsfall's son Richard, the other his brother-in-law Ned, a man who taught the Horsfalls weavers the trick of weavers, the worsteds which came to be the foundation of the Horsfall prosperity.

Strangely, Miss Bentley does quite well with her men, and quite badly with her women. There are four women in "Manhold" who really matter, and none is very vivid in the reader's mind. The oldest is Ned's wife, a coarse and somewhat incredible female who dies at last and precipitates the closing catastrophe. Her two daughters are Ann, beautiful and determined to revenge her father's defeat, and Leah, who is gently daft. Richard's wife is chiefly remarkable because she gives him a son, and chiefly memorable because of her deafness.

Tim Bobbin, a character out of history, is the super-clever man behind the scenes and perhaps the most credible of the whole lot. Manhold as a principality is next most creditable. Its rise and fall mean something to the reader. But

MATRONS' SOFT SHIRRED DRESS

MARIAN MARTIN

You'll look fresh and gay as the flowers-a-bloom in your garden—in this graceful summertime dress, Pattern 9722 by Marian Martin. Its light-hearted air disguises its main purpose in life: to slenderize and minimize the thirty-six-to-fifty size figure. Starting at the very top, there is smart shirring that holds gathering through both the shoulders above and the bustline below. A row of darts above the waist seam helps to keep the softness in place. The cool, cool neckline is cut in a youthful square with a gay, unexpected notch. Notice how the double panels to the skirt front give tall, slim lines below the waist. A becoming style that's simple to make with the Sew Chart's aid!

Pattern 9722 may be ordered only in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3 yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Summertime means high time to order the Marian Martin Pattern Book! It's one of the most complete, well-balanced collections of dressmaking designs available, with real inspiration from cover to cover. Cottons for at-home and vacationing... lettuce-crisp prints... smart sports, travel and dress-up wear... cool outfits for everyone. And each style is easy to order in a simple-to-use pattern. Send now! Book is just fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

through the entire book I felt I was reading something I already knew; that the Bentley formula had been reworked once too often. Miss Bentley proceeds always in an orderly way. She makes an effect each time. But the novels are all cut from the same piece of Yorkshire cloth.

WAR MEMORIAL COMPLETED

Leetsdale, Pa. (AP)—A shrine to veterans of all American wars that has been 23 years in materializing will be dedicated in this Allegheny county community on the Fourth of July. An old fire bell, weighing more than 800 pounds, which hung atop the borough hall for a quarter of a century will be refinished as a replica of the famed "Liberty Bell" and placed on the grounds of the Leetsdale high school with appropriate ceremonies.

MACARONI MIXTURE

When making up a macaroni mixture for the family or a crowd, allow about a cup of cooked macaroni per serving. And did you know that raw macaroni more than doubles itself when it is cooked?

COMPANY E IS ORDERED INTO NIGHT CONVOY

barracks the route was explained and it was discovered that the entire route was within a twelve mile radius of the camp. Several times during the drive the convoy passed by the Company commissioned officers unknowingly. Captain Keckler, 1st Lieutenant Wentz and 2nd Lieutenant Haring had their command car parked behind theirs while the convoy passed then sped to another spot to check if the instructions were being carried out correctly.

Company Assignments
PFC John Bollinger one of Company E's cooks made his first desert the other night. Doughnuts were his choice and they turned out very well. The only criticisms were that they were a little hard in comparison with cook Lempesis' but nevertheless the entire lot was devoured.

Private "Hen" Redding is the real "handyman" of Company E. He is a painter, mason and most anything else.

PFC "Dick" Crone leaves camp on Saturday for a month course in vulcanizing in Akron, Ohio.

PFC Vernon Miller has returned to Company E after having successfully completing the same course during the past month.

Private George Tate and your correspondent are in the skit "Army Life" that is being presented in the forum in Harrisburg on Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week. The skit is a section of the play "Americans All."

Captain Keckler has entered the name of Private "Chee-Chee" before the colonel for his approval as to whether she should be made a PFC (Private First Class). We'll know more about his decision later. Private "Chee" by the way underwent a minor operation during the past week and everyone is looking forward to her dismissal from a veterinarian hospital in Harrisburg. She is to be discharged tonight.

Sincerely Yours,
PFC Bernard A. Stock, Jr.
Company E reporter.

Mass Calisthenics
Indiantown Gap, Pa., May 17 (AP)—Soldiers of the 56th Infantry brigade greeted the dawn today with the largest demonstration of mass calisthenics yet put on at this 28th Division training reservation.

Acre upon acre of Muir field was dotted with 3,200 regularly spaced enlisted men and officers, all members of the 11th and 12th Regiments of the brigade commanded by Brig. Gen. Edward J. Stackpole, Jr.

Soldiers here exercise by platoons and companies when they get up each morning. Several battalion and regimental demonstrations have been held but this was the first on a brigade scale.

Next there'll be a demonstration by the entire division of Pennsylvania's 13,000 federalized National Guardsmen.

The men of the 56th, apparently none the worse for a 15-mile road march Friday, did their squats, push-ups and stretches to commands given by an officer over the mobile public address system. Shirts were doffed for the purpose.

The demonstration wasn't perfect. But the post commandant, Major General Edward Martin, said he was impressed by the degree of coordination, considering it was the initial try.

Part of the demonstration was done to music played by a division band.

The demonstration consumed some 20 minutes and officers said it was designed to train the men in huge-scale co-ordinated discipline rather than for the exercise in it.

No One Dropped Out
The 56th didn't need exercise anyway after its hike. Strenuous as it was, evidences of how the men are toughening up were shown in the fact not a single man dropped out.

"They swung along like veterans," officers commented. "The day-by-day hardening exercises have worked well and we're very pleased with their condition."

The 11th of Philadelphia, commanded by Col. Franklin P. Haller, and the 12th of Kane, commanded by Col. Joseph R. Carvill, set out early in the morning on separate routes, carrying full field equipment and the same gear they would use in wartime combat.

Brigade officers indicated the marches would be stepped up during the next few months to a maximum of 25 to 27 miles in one day.

While the 56th was marching, the 55th brigade, made up of troops from Scranton, Altoona and Washington, spent the day in camouflage training, digging "hasty entrenchments"—for emergency use under shelling—and setting up first aid stations for treatment of casualties in the field.

Training activities ended for the week-end at noon today and guardsmen not on detail duty left the reservation for home or to find entertainment in the surrounding communities.

DOBBIN HOUSE OPENING DRAWS MANY VISITORS

Doctor Fortenbaugh Speaks at Museum Opening

A crowd of more than 150 persons witnessed the exercises Friday afternoon at which the historic Dobbin house along Steinwehr avenue was opened as a public museum.

Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, head of the history department at Gettysburg college, delivered the address; Brady Sefton, local barber, who was born in the Dobbin building, cut the ribbon officially opening the museum to the public, and T. J. Kammerer, Newville, Lincoln inn proprietor, delivered the Gettysburg address.

John D. Lippy, Jr., who owns and has developed the Dobbin property, presided over the exercises which began at 3 o'clock on the lawn in front of the big stone house. The invocation was given by the Rev. Howard S. Fox, pastor of Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church of Gettysburg. There was special music by the Gettysburg high school band.

Mrs. E. D. Hudson and Miss Iva Beck together with Mr. Sefton were introduced as living "Dobbin babies," having been born in the historic building, and Past Commander Lester J. Melly of the Mt. Holly post of the American Legion was presented as a guest. The exercises closed with the benediction by the Rev. Harry S. Ecker, pastor of the Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church, and the "Star Spangled Banner" by the high school band.

The crowd then inspected the old building at the invitation of Mr. Lippy who said he has spent 33 years in collecting the historical objects shown.

In his address Doctor Fortenbaugh described the Rev. Alexander Dobbin as "a remarkable man, highly educated, who performed a great constructive service." He said the house Dobbin built is the oldest building west of the Susquehanna originally used for school purposes.

The speaker paid tribute to the life and service of Alexander Dobbin and pioneers like him who left the comparative comforts of the old world to come out into this country and make important contributions to the founding of this republic.

Ellwood City, Pa. (AP)—All doubt that a housing shortage existed in this Lawrence county industrial community has been dissipated. When four government supervisors arrived to start preliminary work on a federal defense-housing project, they were unable to find living quarters.

METROPOLITAN EDISON SHOWS 12.3% INCREASE

Construction Budget Is in Excess of $5,000,000

Substantial increases in the sale of electric energy for all types of service furnished, residential, commercial, industrial, street lighting and other miscellaneous usage, was reported at a meeting of stockholders of Metropolitan Edison Company held at the company office, 412 Washington street, Reading.

Stockholders elected the following directors: J. M. Steere and Albert W. Whittlesey, of Philadelphia, to represent the company's prior preferred stockholders; O. Titus, A. J. Altohuse, J. H. Bucher, W. H. Doran and E. O. Dreas, of Reading, and C. P. McFadden and Paul Smith, of New York, to represent the common stockholders.

Following the stockholders meeting the directors organized with the following officers: President O. Titus; vice president, W. H. Doran; secretary-treasurer, J. H. Bucher; executive committee, O. Titus, Paul Smith and W. H. Doran. J. H. Bucher was appointed an alternate member of the executive committee.

In reporting on the business of the company for the past year, Mr. Titus said that the sale of kilowatt hours totaled 714,599,809, an increase of 12.3 per cent over the preceding year. Kilowatt hour increases, however, do not represent a proportionate increase in net operating income, due to increased taxes, fuel costs and increased prices of labor and material.

The company's present generating capacity is being augmented by the installation of an additional unit at the West Reading Power station and it is expected that this new high pressure unit will be placed in operation during the coming summer. This addition will increase the company's total generating capacity to 210,928 kilowatt.

The construction budget for 1941 is in excess of $5,000,000. More than $2,000,000 is to be expended on the completion of the new steam unit at the West Reading Power station. A like amount is to be spent for transmission and distribution systems to take care of important improvements and additions vital to the continuance of dependable service.

Further improvements and enlargements of the company's substation facilities are planned and it is expected that approximately $750,000 will be expended in this connection during the coming year.

ALL PROGRAMS IN DAYLIGHT
SAVING TIME
[By the Associated Press]

New York, May 17.—A half dozen or more programs have been arranged for Sunday in celebration of I'm an American Day. In addition, Secretary of State Cordell Hull is listed for a talk on "World Trade Week," and other week-end speakers include Senator J. H. Ball, of Minnesota, Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio and Alfred M. Landon.

As given its radio premier by the Frank Black orchestra, Baritone Ross Graham and chorus in the Lucille Manners concert Friday night, Kent Cooper's first published composition, "Dixie Girl," was what song lovers described as a well-defined melody. They classified it as not only "humable and singable," but a tune easy to whistle. Cooper, who is general manager of the Associated Press, long has composed as a hobby but never before for the public.

DREAM REALIZED

Lancaster, Pa., May 17 (AP)—The Landis brothers, Henry, 76, and George, 74, realize a life-long dream today with dedication of the Landis valley museum to house their almost priceless collection of Pennsylvania Dutch antiques. Gathered over a period of nearly 60 years, the collection includes some 200,000 articles dating back to the early 1700's and a collection of 25,000 books chronicling the history of the pioneer antecedents of the Pennsylvania Dutch who brought orderly fruitful farms out of Indian wilderness.

"The Little Foxes" in Their 1900 Costumes

Show above are some members of the cast of "The Little Foxes," the Owl and Nightingale dramatic club play presented in the Gettysburg college gymnasium Thursday evening. The players are, left to right: Janet Reiver, F. R. McLaughlin, Arlene Spangler, Malcolm Baer, Philip Warnke and Fred Durham. The play brought back memories to Dr. Richard A. Arms, director of the club, when he recalled that at one time he wore collars of the 1900 period similar to the ones in the picture. (Gettysburg Times photo.)

"THE GREAT LIE." Screenplay by Lenore Coffee from Polan Banks' novel. Directed by Edmund Goulding. Principals: Bette Davis, George Brent, Mary Astor, Lucille Watson and Hattie McDaniel.

Pete, engaged to Maggie, marries Sandra (Astor), famed pianist, while under the influence. A few days later he discovers the marriage was illegal. Dutifully offering remarriage if she will give up her career, he is rejected and returns to Maggie.

After their marriage, Pete leaves on an aviation project in the jungle, is lost. Maggie makes a deal with Sandra: a trust fund in exchange for Pete's child which Sandra is expecting. Off in the desert the child is born. Pete, of course, returns safe—whereupon Sandra, still in love with him, uses the child as a threat over Maggie's head.

What we call a great woman's picture—it's a shrewd cat-fight—"The Great Lie" is so persuasively acted and narrated you almost forget that such a sensible, forthright person as Maggie wouldn't have kept the "lie" from Pete a minute. Surprising performance: Miss Astor's. Better than usual: Miss Davis.

Hollywood, take notice! Two real sailors from Uncle Sam's Navy, featured in the first advertisement of the new Chesterfield Cigarette schedule, could give America's screen heroes a run for their money. The seamen, Coxswain Joseph Ellis Newton and Electrician's Mate Edward F. Hayward of the new great battleship U.S.S. North Carolina, were selected from 1,000 men on the receiving ship Seattle, as typical of the high calibre of our U. S. Navy personnel. Other advertisements another (Lamarr) was the beauty who carried the torch for her husband until she won him back; the third (Garland) just trouped her way to fame, always loyal to her has-been daddy.

Thus we have not one cliché of the backstage movie plot, but three, served up in one gaudy, glittering dish complete with preposterous costumes, lavish settings, big production numbers and choruses by Tony Martin.

Lana, petulant-mouthed beauty, does a good trick as the cutie who wanted her cake and Stewart too, and Judy brightens the business no end. Hedy, beautiful Hedy, is around off and on, looking beautiful, though sometimes one forgets just what her business was. Maybe that's because there was so much other cast to keep tab on. But with a cast like that one needn't lose any sleep over Metro's profit sheet on the venture.

Next Saturday "North From Lone Star," with Bill Elliot, and "Whirlwind Horseman," with Ken Maynard, will be shown at the Strand from noon to 3 p. m. After 3 p. m. the only picture to be shown will be "North From Lone Star."

MOVIES coming to the Majestic the week of May 26 follow:
Monday and Tuesday—"The Lady Eve," with Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda.

Wednesday—"Vivacious Lady," with James Stewart and Ginger Rogers.

Thursday—"Power Dive," with Richard Arlen and Jean Parker.
Friday and Saturday—"Meet John Doe," with Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck.

A midnight show will be held at the Majestic on Sunday night, May 25. Two features will be included on the program. The doors will open at 12:01 a. m. and the first movie, "The Mad Doctor," with Basil Rathbone and Ellen Drew, will begin at 12:30 a. m. This will be followed at 1:35 a. m. by "Monster and the Girl," starring Paul Lucas and Ellen Drew.

Homecoming Planned at Lower Bermudian Church

On Sunday the second annual homecoming program of the Lower Bermudian Lutheran church will be held in the morning, afternoon and evening.

This church was founded in 1745 and is now looking toward the observance of its 200th birthday anniversary. During the years of its history not only have thousands of Lutherans worshipped within its walls, but it has served as a mother of churches, for from it came the nucleus for the beginning of five daughter congregations in the northeastern section of Adams county.

Those churches whose beginning can be traced to the church at Lower Bermudian are York Springs, Upper Bermudian, Chestnut Grove, Franklin and Heidersburg.

The day's activities will begin in the morning with homecoming in the Sunday school at 9:30 o'clock. This program will be in charge of Mrs. H. E. Menges, superintendent of the school. The Rev. Paul Gladfelter, former pastor from 1910-1920, will be the guest teacher of the Sunday school. Special music by the children of the Sunday school and Mrs. Guy Musselman will be featured on the program.

At the noon hour a basket luncheon will be served in the basement room of the church. All those who are able are urged to come in the morning and remain throughout the day for the various programs.

The main program for the day will be held in the afternoon at 2:30 p. m. in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Lester M. Utz.

The homecoming sermon will be preached by the Rev. George H. Berkheimer, pastor of the Arendtsville Lutheran parish.

Brief addresses will be brought by the Rev. Stanley Billheimer, 1904-1910, and the Rev. L. B. Hafer, 1926-1936, both former pastors of the Lower Bermudian parish.

Special music will be provided in the afternoon by the York Springs Sunday school orchestra under the direction of Harold Lerew; Mr. and Mrs. William Stone, York, and Mrs. Guy Musselman, of the home church.

The evening program is to be a homecoming musical program. Each daughter church has been invited to send a musical number for this program. Other special music will be provided.

The closing address of the day will be delivered at the evening session by the Rev. B. K. Mower, Hanover, former pastor of the New Baltimore-Mt. Carmel Lutheran charge. An invitation is extended to all former members and friends of the church to attend the day's activities.

PAY DOESN'T MATTER

Philadelphia, May 17 (AP)—Raymond A. Van Horn decided he'd rather be a cop than a fireman even if it cost him money. A rookie fireman since Sept. 6, he drew $5 a day and was in line for second-year pay of $5.50 daily next January and $6 a day the following year. However, he took a job as a policeman and now gets only $5 a day. He won't get $5.50 until July 1, 1942 or $6 until 1943.

The Normandie

Once One of the Most Lavishly-Fitted Ships Afloat

[By the Associated Press]

The grimy, dirty Normandie, once flagship of the merchant fleet of France and one of the most lavishly-fitted ships afloat, is under United States guard, one of a dozen or more vessels seized in the government's latest move against foreign shipping.

The Normandie, her once gay red, white and black superstructure coated by rust and the grime of the city, has lain at a New York dock since she dashed into port five days after outbreak of the war, safe from a blackout crossing.

Police have guarded her since and few who have passed her pier have failed to "look to see if she's still there."

For there were many rumors about the Normandie. Every time her huge engines were turned over and whenever a crewman polished a bit of brass, the word got around she was going to dash for the open seas. But she wasn't painted grey, as was the Queen Mary, which lay beside her for months, and as was the Queen Elizabeth, both of which went back into the war from which they had first sought refuge here.

Four other French ships were boarded in New York harbor by the coast guard. Ten men were placed on the Normandie to guard her. Three each on the Ile de Noirmoutier and Mont Everst, which lay beside her, and the Fort Royal and Ile de Ouessant, which have been plying between New York and Martinique. The latter four are freighters.

The Normandie, with her spectacular Parisian decor, was the largest and fastest ship afloat when she made her maiden voyage to the United States June 3, 1935. Soon she was in competition with the Queen Mary of the Cunard lines for the mythical blue pennant of trans-oceanic speed supremacy and the title changed hands several times before the war stopped her racing.

Her overall length is 1,029 feet and she displaces 84,423 tons. Her promenades are as broad as city streets and her main dining salon is 100 yards long. Virtually no shop to be found in Paris was not duplicated in the ship for the benefit of her passenger capacity of 2,170.
